

Emergency preparedness and response

5 February 2019
Rotterdam, the Netherlands

Ensuring that our colleagues work safely with biological materials is our day-to-day job, but what if an unexpected, unplanned and unwanted event occurs?

Are you prepared for an emergency involving biological materials?

The aim of the symposium is to familiarize the participants with emergency preparedness and response, thereby including all potential stakeholders. By means of a short classroom introduction and multiple hands-on break-out sessions, participants will gain insight in emergency planning, training and communication with stakeholders. Details on the program and how to register will be announced soon.
